Chapter VII: Vayetzei (Gen. 28:10-32:3)

Essay 12. A maidservant for Rachel שָּכּרָק "נִיּמֵן לָבָן לְרָחֵל בַּתּוֹ אֶת־בִּלְהָה שִׁפְחָתוֹ לָהּ לְשִׁפְחָה". קַשֶּׁה אַמֵּאי בְּרָחֵל אָמַר, "לָהּ לְשִׁפְחָה", וּבְלֵאֶה לֹא אָמֵר אָלָא "רִשָּׁפִּחָה". "לְשָׁפִּחָה".

There is a verse: "Laban had given to Rachel, his daughter, his maidservant Bilhah, as a maidservant for her" (Gen. 29:29).

An earlier verse, Gen. 29:24, states: אַהָּחָתוֹ לְלַפָּה שִׁפְּחָתוֹ לְלַפָּה שִׁפְּחָתוֹ לְלַפָּה שִׁפְּחָתוֹ לְלַפָּה שִׁפְּחָתוֹ לְלַפָּה שִׁפְּחָתוֹ ("Laban had given his maidservant Zilpah to Leah, his daughter, as a maidservant."

A difficulty is that why for Rachel, does it say, "as a maidservant for her" [לָה לְשִׁפְּחָה], but for Leah, it only says "as a maidservant" [שַׁפְּחָה]? Why does Gen. 29:29 include the extra word לָּה [la] ["for her"].

וְגַרְסִינָן בְּפֶּרֶק ה' דַּכְתוּבּוֹת (דַּף ס"א ע"א) הָכְנִיסָה לוֹ שִׁפְחָה אַחַת וְכוּ' הָא שְׁאָרָה עַבְדָא, וְתֵימָא לֵיהּ עַיֵּילית לָךְּ אִיתְּתָא בַּחָרִיקאי, מִשׁוּם דְּאָמַר לָה הָא טַרְחָא לְדִידִי וּלְדִידָה קּמֵי דִידָיךְ מַאן טַרַח ע"כ.

There is a reading in the fifth chapter of tractate Ketubot (page 61a):

[The Mishnah states that] "If she brought him one maidservant [i.e., a wife brought the maidservant with her into the marriage, the maidservant will perform some of the tasks for the husband that the wife would otherwise be obligated to perform [i.e., grinding, baking, and washing clothes]."

She [must nevertheless] perform the other [tasks, such as cooking, nursing her child, making his bed, and spinning thread from wool]. [The Gemara asks hypothetically:] Let [the wife] say to him: I brought you a woman in my place [who can perform all the tasks I am supposed to do]. [The Gemara answers that this is not a valid argument] because [the husband] can say to her: This [maidservant]

toils for me and for herself, [but] who will toil for you? [I.e., it is necessary for the wife to do some work in order to cover some of her own expenses].

- Ketubot 61a

וְאָם כֵּן שִׁפְחָת לֵאָה הָיָה לָה לְטְרוֹחַ בִּשְׁבִיל יַצְּלָב וּבִשְׁבִיל עַצְמָה, אֲבָל שִׁפְחָת רָחֵל לֹא הָיָה לָה לְטְרוֹחַ בִּשְׁבִיל יַצְלָב, דּכְבָר טָרְחָא לְדִידֵיה שִׁפְחָת לָאָה. וְרָחֵל הָיְתָה יְכוֹלָה לוֹמֵר לְיַצְלָב עַיֵּילִית לָךְ אִיתְּתָא בַּחֲרִיקַאי, וּמִשׁוּם הָכִי אָמֵר "לָה לְשׁפְחָה" שַׁהִיא הָיִתַה פָּטוּרָה לַצְשׁוֹת שׁוּם מִלָּאכָה מֵה שֵׁאֵין כֵּן בָּלֵאָה.

If so, then as Leah was the first to marry Jacob, the maidservant of Leah was obliged to toil for Jacob and for herself. Leah was thus obliged to do some chores. But then, as the second to marry Jacob, the maidservant of Rachel was not obliged to toil for Jacob, for the maidservant of Leah was already toiling for him. Rachel therefore was able to say to Jacob, "I brought you a woman in my place," and because of this, [Scripture] said, "a maidservant for her," as [Rachel] was exempt from doing any of the work a wife normally performs for her husband, which was not the case for Leah.
